HOW TO READ THIS

One page per phrase, cues in the order they are given. Each cue names the parts it speaks to; a part not named is sent nothing at all — no instruction and no light — and carries on with what it is already doing. The line at the right of a cue says who those silent parts are, so you can see at a glance that leaving them out was meant.

Under each phrase heading are the pitches that phrase gives each part, and how the pitch is decided there: this pitch, yours by seat, your choice, or a band to move about inside.

Nothing here is timed. When a cue lands is the conductor's decision, and the piece has no fixed length.

THE FOUR PARTS, OVER THE WHOLE PIECE

I	E♭3 – A4
II	B♭2 – B♭3
III	D♭2 – A♭3
IV	C1 – G3

Two players to a part at least. Extra players spread across the written pitches rather than doubling, so a part with three notes wants three players.

The cue sheet in these pages is printed from `cues.json` and `parts.json` — the files the players read live. Change a cue and run `node score/make-score.js` again rather than editing this document.
